

Lance Mazmanian
note@mazmanian.net
Micro Fiction (136 Words)

Jelly Atoms

This thing looked like a big jelly sandwich made from totally clear bread or something. There was an eye in the middle of the blob, not on the surface but inside, and it was sapphire like a sapphire, looking around daubed with a round white iris and a pupil shaped like a saxophone. Damn. I thought about grabbing the mess, since it wasn't much larger than a cooked pheasant...but who knows what it might do? Hey, maybe it's one of those cute Star Trek things...or maybe it would bite half my hand off with invisible steel teeth, or something. It kept looking my way, so I decided to take a chance and touch it. It exploded in a 50-megaton burst, kinda like the Tsar Bomba from 1961, and it leveled Los Angeles almost completely. Oh, dear.

End.